GIVING, TAKING, AND CHEATING: THE ECOLOGY OF SYMBIOSIS

with Michelle Hersh, Biology
Alice Ilchman Science Center,
Room 103

From gut flora of animals to fungi living in tree roots, symbioses are important and widespread throughout the natural world. We can broadly define symbiosis as different species living together in a close association of any nature, from mutualism to parasitism. In this seminar, we will explore how symbioses are developed, maintained, and broken down, and consider the scientific challenges to understanding the function of such associations. We will place a special emphasis on mutualisms, or interactions in which both partners benefit—unless, of course, one cheats.

IDEAS OF AFRICA: AFRICA WRITES BACK with Mary Dillard, African History and Global Studies

Heimbold 208
The continent of Africa has variously been described as: the birthplace of humanity, the “Motherland,” a country, a continent, “Mother Africa,” and a “heart of darkness.” All of these descriptions reflect representations of Africa, but how accurately do they reflect reality? The goal of this seminar is to study the intellectual history of what we know—or think we know—about modern Africa. Why is it that some of the most prominent images of Africa today are either negative (i.e. Africa as a diseased, hungry, war-ravaged continent) or romanticized (i.e., Africa as a mother figure, birthplace of civilization, or lush nature preserve)? A central theme of our discussions will be that ideas have a history that is as powerful as radioactive isotopes. In other words, ideas maintain a shelf-life, even when their origins have long become obscured. Unfortunately, this has profound implications for Africa’s place in a modern, media driven, globalized world where image can be as important as reality.

NARRATIVE STRATEGIES: READING FICTION AS A WRITER with David Hollander MFA '97, Writing Esther Raushenbush Library, Pillow Room

I am currently (at the time of writing this description) teaching a course titled “Narrative Strategies: Reading Fiction as a Writer.” We’re breaking fiction down into various strategies (first-person strategies, third-person strategies, language-driven strategies, structure-driven strategies, etc.) and learning how decisions at the level of style drive and shape the content of fictional works; we’re then practicing what we’ve learned in our own weekly fictions. This one-session Reunion event will try to replicate, in miniature, this rhythm. We’ll look at two or three very short stories with unique engines and discuss how language and structure combine to generate energy on the page. And then we’ll spend some time writing, employing what we’ve learned, and sharing some of the results. Bring pen, paper, and a healthy dose of playfulness!

Luncheons

11:30 a.m.–1:30 p.m.

50th Reunion Lunch with President Cristle Collins Judd
Class of '73 and earlier
President’s House

Reunion Lunch with All Other Classes
Barbara Walters Campus Center

Local Tours

1:45–4 p.m.
Departing from the Barbara Walters Campus
Center Circle, Andrews Parking Lot

Tour of the Sarah Lawrence College Center for the Urban River at Beczak (CURB)

Explore the College’s academic research facility on the banks of the Hudson River at Habirshaw Park. The center features a welcoming riverfront lawn, an easily accessible tidal marsh, and a beach used for river exploration and seining. SLC CURB provides a broad educational platform, establishes a Hudson River research program, and incorporates service learning and citizen science projects in the Yonkers community.

Tour of Untermyer Park and Gardens

Enjoy a guided tour of Untermyer Park and Gardens, a historic 43-acre city public park, located in Yonkers, New York. The park is a remnant of Samuel Untermyer’s 150-acre estate, Greystone, with views of the Hudson River and the Palisades. The park features a Walled Garden inspired by ancient Indo-Persian gardens, the Vista, the former Color Gardens, the Temple of Love, and the Rock and Stream Garden.

Session II: Seminars and Workshops

2–3:30 p.m.

PSYCHOLOGY OF FOOD AND EATING with Maia Pujara, Psychology

Heimbold 208
Why do we eat? What is the function of food? These questions seem simple on the surface, but the many possible answers reveal the complexity of our relationship with food. Food choices are shaped by our relationships with others, our culture and upbringing, our emotions, and our bodies. Explore concepts ranging from the psychological and biological underpinnings of how we sense and perceive different tastes to how we develop food preferences and eating behaviors in the context of both “normal” and disordered relationships with food. In the first half of this session, we will cover the major themes and trends that arise throughout the semester-long seminar related to our relationship with food and how we develop eating behaviors. The second half of the seminar will involve a mini-workshop that mirrors the structure of the conference work for this class.

JAZZ HISTORY with Glenn Alexander, Music Marshall Field 1

Jazz music of all styles and periods will be listened to, analyzed, and discussed. Emphasis will be placed on instrumental styles and performance techniques that have evolved in the performance of jazz. Skills in listening to and enjoying some of the finer points of the music will be enhanced by the study of elements such as form, phrasing, instrumentation, instrumental technique, and style. Special emphasis will be placed on the development of modern jazz and its relationship to older styles. The crossover of jazz into other styles of modern music, such as rock and R&B, will be discussed, as will the influence that modern concert music and world music have had on jazz styles.
